This woodland was created under the Changing Landscapes Scheme. This is a unique scheme that enables landowners to apply for funds to create diverse woodland habitats. The National Forest Company funds The National Forest Changing Landscapes Scheme.

The National Forest is transforming 200 square miles of Leicestershire, Derbyshire and Staffordshire; steadily turning what was once one of the least wooded parts of England into a sustainable forest for the 21st Century and beyond.

The creation of The National Forest is seeing millions of trees planted with the help of local communities as well as improved public access, new and enhanced wildlife habitats and the development of recreation facilities. The aim is for woodland to cover about a third of the Forest area. For more information visit www.nationalforest.org
